

After one such storm, on Valentine's Day
Lovers' Arch collapsed into the sea
The rock had been weakened very quickly
In just days by strong winds, waves, and rainfall
Italy's most beloved natural landmark
Crumbled into the Adriatic sea

Medicane, a once rare destructive storm
Mediterranean and hurricane
Clash together in the rising heat
More frequent chaos in a warming world
Hundreds of millimetres of rain flood
Fierce sixty mile-per-hour winds whip up
The sea into fifteen meter high waves
Tear urban fabric apart at the seams
